Bloom where you are planted!

by Col. Lawrence Martin
6th Air Mobility Wing commander

We're seeing a lot of new faces around MacDill AFB this month. And they aren't our annual migration of fam campers. It's June, and our military PCS season is cranking up to bring us new folks in all areas of the base. Look around you -- in your squadron, in your unit, in your command. How many new faces do you see? And, most importantly, what do you do? Hopefully you're one of those friendly faces who make a positive difference in how our new people perceive their new home....

Julia and I are often asked two things by our civilian friends. How many times have you moved (12 and counting), and how do you make these moves work? The simple truth is, we military folk thrive wherever we go; we bloom wherever we get planted because the "soil," our environment, our community, helps us make these difficult transitions easier. In our family, we call it making lemonade from lemons. Wherever we move, we look for the sweet instead of the sour. In Hawaii, we were far from friends and family; however, we discovered rainbows and ocean runs. In Kansas, although the winters were desolate, we found wonderful neighbors and friends (ones we still keep in touch with)! Last year when I was on a remote, we all made lemonade (we just had to work a little harder). Julia and the boys moved back to her home to be close to her family, but she found a new military family, too, as the people of Little Rock Air Force Base adopted them. Meanwhile, I had the opportunity to help build a base, to lead phenomenal Airmen, and to fly.

We all depend upon our military friends to make moves work. We call friends who've lived where we are going to find out about neighborhoods, schools and commute times. We rely on sponsors we've never met to help us secure lodging, find rentals, deliver hot meals and watch Fluffy and Fido. Due to the nature of our transient lives, we only rarely get to return any favors directly to the giver; instead, we step up to help other military families and do for them just what has been done for us. We do this so often for each other, we never think twice about the "effort," nor do we find what we do unusual.

On the more formal end, we also have some great resources to make transitions smoother. We have information at our base website (www.macdill.af.mil) and at our Airman and Family Readiness Centers (located on MacDill AFB 813-828-0145 and in Brandon 813-655-9281) on reintegration; financial management; planning your move; finding employment, homes and schools, and generally getting settled in Tampa Bay.

What makes your move and new home good or bad? You do. Bloom where you are planted. The soil is especially good right here. Those who came before us have cultivated it well by giving to the local communities, by retiring here, by enriching the lives of others. We have a responsibility to sow even more seeds of friendship and create truly sweet lemonade....right here. It WILL make a difference – in your life and in the life of someone else.

Meet the new 6 MOS commander

Major Benjamin D. Retzinger

New 6th Maintenance Operations Squadron commander

1) What do you expect of the Airmen under your command?

I think all Airmen must display loyalty – To America, to the Air Force and its core values, to their unit and the Airmen they serve with.

2) Who are your favorite leaders and role models?

Two people that I really try to emulate and learn from are my father and Vince Lombardi.

3) What does it mean to you to be new 6 MOS commander?

It's a great honor to be the 6 MOS commander and I am looking forward to the opportunity to serve – my country, the Air Force, and my unit.

4) When you hold your first commander's call what is the first thing you are going to tell your Airmen?

Most likely "Good morning." Then I'll remind all Airmen to never pass up the opportunity to do something right.

5) What are your thoughts about MacDill and living in Tampa?

So far I'm excited to be living and working at such an outstanding base in a beautiful and supportive community.

How safe are we?

You be the judge; AFCAST survey wraps up June 29

by Lt. Col. Jason Wolf

6th Air Mobility Wing chief of safety

As I watched the Penguins defeat the Redwings in the final games of the Stanley Cup playoffs this year, the merits of ice hockey and the game's similarities to many Air Force campaigns became clear: go in with a sound strategy, fight for every possession, and play the game with energy and determination. Hockey's two period breaks allow a chance for coaches and players to evaluate their strategy, boost their energy, and prepare to fight again. The Penguins showed they could execute these tenants better than any other team, and have Lord Stanley's Cup in their possession for the coming year as their prize.

As we near the end of the first period of this year's 101 Critical Days of Summer campaign, Team MacDill has a chance to evaluate our strategy, breathe new energy into the safety campaign, and prepare to fight every hazard to our Airmen during this important effort. As a vehicle in this push, every Airman is asked to have their voice heard via the Air Force Culture Assessment Safety Tools Survey (AFCAST). This survey is comprised of several 5-minute questionnaires which seek to analyze our safety culture, including attitudes, perceptions, and practices. At a minimum, each unit's surveys include a "discipline-specific" section (Operations, Maintenance, or Support) and an off-duty/recreation activities section, so important during these summer months. Other unit surveys may include DUI awareness, Voluntary Protection Program, and Motorcycle safety for riders/operators. Survey takers' identities are protected during the questionnaires, allowing open, honest feedback. At a minimum, AFCAST will make you think more critically as you work and as you approach your weekend activities. Equally as important, the aggregate results will help commanders and supervisors at all levels assess how our organization is doing, and allow them to revector our efforts through the remainder of the summer safety campaign. Right now, the score is

Wing busy preparing for UCI excellence

by Nick Stubbs

There are a couple of ways to do things: the easy way, and the right way, and new Airmen who have not come to appreciate that old saw are getting an education from their seniors, as Unit Compliance Inspection preparations are in full swing.

Scheduled for Aug. 3 through 11, a team of Air Force inspectors will descend on MacDill, going through the 6th Air Mobility Wing's units with a uncompromising eye for detail and armed with a checklist that rivals a small city's phone book.

How will the Wing perform is a matter of preparation, and if you ask around, some, like Master Sgt. Fitzroy Howe, who along with Tech. Sgt. Kristi Cooley, is spearheading the preparation efforts for the 6th Security Forces Squadron, will tell you: "We'll be ready."

Emergency response and being first responders is a key element of the Security Forces role, so there is a lot of preparation emphasis in

Summer heat can be brutal; here's how to win the battle

Tips to stay cool (Part III of III)

by Senior Airman Tania Reid
6th Air Mobility Wing Public Affairs

The state of Florida is known for its sub tropical climate but when the temperatures rise around the summertime, scorching heat results. Older people and children are affected the most by the high temperatures during these 101 Critical Days of Summer. If tempted to work outdoors there are ways to prevent heat exhaustion and overheating.

The consumer energy center members report there are other things to do and avoid during this season. Some of these things activities include:

Stay indoors and, if at all possible, stay in an air-conditioned place. If your home does not have air conditioning, go to the shopping mall or public library-even a few hours spent in air conditioning can help your body stay cooler when you go back into the heat. Call your local health department to see if there are any heat-relief shelters in your area.

Electric fans may provide comfort, but when the temperature is in the high 90s or above, fans will not prevent heat-related illness. Taking a cool shower or bath, or moving to an air-conditioned place is a much better way to cool off.

Drink lots of cool, non-alcoholic fluids. If you're exercising or working, drink 2 to 4 glasses of water an hour. If you lose a lot of fluid on a hot day, sports drinks are

See BEAT HEAT, Page 14

Great non-alcoholic drinks for summer

Aqua Fresca

INGREDIENTS:

4 cups drinking water
2 cups fresh fruit
1/4 cup sugar
2 teaspoons lemon or lime juice
lime or lemon wedges for garnish

PREPARATION:

In a blender combine water and fruit. Puree until smooth. Pour mixture through a sieve into a pitcher or serving container. Stir in lemon or lime juice and sugar. Add additional sugar to taste. Garnish with a lemon or lime wedge.

preferred over water because they will replenish sodium.

Check with your doctor if you have health problems that require you to limit fluid intake or you're taking diuretics - ask him/her how much you should drink while the weather is hot.

Don't wait until you're thirsty to drink. Drink more fluids (nonalcoholic) regardless of your activity level. Don't rely upon thirst as an indicator of your need for water; it's not reliable in very high heat.

Don't drink liquids that contain caffeine, alcohol, or large amounts of sugar - these actually cause you to lose more body fluid. Also, avoid very cold drinks, because they can cause stomach cramps.

Avoid hot foods, and keep meals light. Foods (like proteins) that increase metabolic heat production also increase water loss (the body has to work harder - and use more blood - to digest heavy foods).

NEVER leave anyone in a closed, parked vehicle. Certainly don't leave children or pets in a vehicle, even for "a few minutes." Heat builds up rapidly to exceptionally high temperatures in a closed vehicle, and it doesn't take much exposure to make children or pets very ill.

Pay attention to the warning signs of heat exhaustion:

- Red, hot sweaty skin, cramps, lightheadedness and fatigue will occur long before heatstroke.
- Get out of the heat immediately and seek medical attention before serious harm is done.

Rodeo team ready to conquer, bring trophy home again

by Senior Airman Tania Reid

6th Air Mobility Wing Public Affairs

The Air Mobility Command Rodeo team competition is just under a month away and Team MacDill's preparation is in full swing. With the "best of the best" aircrew, maintenance and security forces teams chosen the trophy is within reach for the competition held at McChord AFB, Wash. from July 19-24.

Each team member selected has never competed in the event but hopes to repeat the victory MacDill had in both 2000 and 2005.

"This will be the first rodeo that I, along with my team members, have participated in," said Capt. Bryson Rintala, 6th Maintenance Group, maintenance team officer in charge. "Even though we have no experience on the team, there were many current 6 AMXS members that have competed in the past rodeo competitions."

Capt. Bryson Rintala

The teams trained in their respective fields' everyday beginning May 2 and will continue until July 18 the day before they leave for the competition.

Maj. Christopher Bragdon, the rodeo team leader, said "Aircrews are preparing in air refueling and cargo loading. Maintainers are practicing for pre-flight inspections, basic post flight inspections, fuel servicing and daily operations."

"The security forces team will practice for the combat tactics course, combat weapons course, combat endurance course and the combat marksman course," he added.

The team's strategies for this year were to choose the best representatives of each field. They were either hand selected by their supervisors or competed to be chosen.

"Our aircrew team began to fly exclusively on the rodeo aircraft in late May and the security forces team traveled to obstacles courses at other bases to train," said Major Bragdon.

At the obstacle course, the security force members were put to the test. They were challenged in multiple physical feats such as running with their gas mask on in their BDUs, climbing up steep walls and more, said Master Sgt. Fitzroy Howe, 6th Security Forces team leader.

While the teams have gained all the training they require to participate, there is still some fine tuning to add to the team's work effort.

"It is known that the best way to score well during the competition is for the team members to work hard, maintain a positive attitude and stay focused on completing the technical orders from beginning to end without skipping or alternating steps," said Captain Rintala.

Over the next few weeks, our team will continue to train hard and needs Team MacDill's support. To raise funds for their shirts, hats and other items, they will be helping to bag items for customers at the base commissary. The team will be located at register 13, July 2 from 12 until 7 p.m. The rodeo is a base-wide effort. Everyone can contribute to the success of the aircrew, maintainers and security forces members participating this year. So come out and support the rodeo team in their efforts to bring home the trophy.

Recruiting Team comes to MacDill

Thunderbolt staff report

More than 100 Airmen got the chance to learn how they can mold civilians into Airmen during a Special duty briefing held at the Base Theater June 18.

The briefing was conducted by Senior Master Sgt. John Bryant, Recruiting Team superintendent from the Air Education Training and Command in Randolph AFB, Texas.

He said that special duty assignments were open for Air Force active duty applicants' senior airman and above.

Applications are being accepted for Military Training Instructors and Leaders, recruiters, Professional Military Education Instructors and Training Instructors.

"We had an outstanding turnout and Sergeant Bryant had some valuable information on all the special duties programs the Air Force has to offer," said Master Sgt. Donald Clark. "Airmen who were not able to attend need not wait for the next visit to apply for a special duty"

For more information on how to apply or meet the requirements call Master Sgt. Donald Clark, 6th Force Support Squadron career assistance advisor at 828-1229 or email him at Donald.clark1@macdill.af.mil.

ground,” he said.

Sergeant Howe said there are 23 functional areas on which Security Forces will be rated. The importance of the job during an emergency makes it a critical element of the Wing, but Team MacDill is an alloy of many, including the 6th Maintenance Squadron. It will get a sort of double-whammy during the inspections, as not only will it be subjected to the UCI, but also the Logistics Standardization and Evaluation Program. The LSEP evaluates the methods and procedures maintenance personnel employ for the various jobs within the unit, and they demonstrate by doing.

“The LSEP inspectors want to see you doing it,” said Chief Master Sgt. Tyrone Schmidt, who is a lead in the preparation for the upcoming inspections.

That involves evaluators looking over the shoulder or Airmen doing their jobs, which can be a bit unnerving for some, he said.

“We focus a lot of getting them (unit personnel) ready and comfortable with having someone hovering right over them while they are working,” said Sergeant Schmidt. “We’re doing well getting ready, and we’re uncovering areas we can be better at and making adjustments.”

“On track,” is how Paul Chong, 6th Force Support Squadron superintendent and UCI coordinator describes his unit’s preparation for the inspection.

The squadron is running a UCI check list, as well as an extensive self check list to get ready, said Mr. Chong.

“Documentation is key,” said Mr. Chong. “The IGs are ‘show me’ kind of people; they want you to be able to back up what you say.”

That documentation will be there and at the ready, he said.

“For the 6th Communications Squadron, the inspections are intensive,” said Senior Master Sgt. Torrance McGee, element chief and UCI coordinator. The squadron is using a 5,000-question check list to prepare, and it does double duty of drilling personnel not only on the UCI checks, but also Air Force Instructions. Sergeant McGee, along with fellow coordinators: First Lt. Gilburto Perez, quality assurance; Master Sgt. Elizabeth Guse, unit fitness manager; Master Sgt. Brent Thiery, 6 CS focal point; and Tech. Sgt. Angela Saunders, unit training manager; want personnel to be able to address all questions they inspectors may ask.

“If the inspectors ask it, we’ll be ready to answer,” said Sgt. McGee. “Our goal is to score another ‘outstanding.’”

Your legal voting residence address (block 3 of the Federal Post Card Application FPCA, SF- 76 helps determine the type of ballot a local election official sends to you.

So even if the home has been sold, rented or is no longer there because the site has been redeveloped, the address continues to be your legal voting residence for voting purposes as long as you continue claiming that state as your legal voting residence.
